I think many in America struggle with the quest for professional satisfaction and reward, which makes Petros writing of his journey so readable. It is just plain interesting to explore another's thoughts and emotions on a path we all are curious about. Whether you have quit,been fired, or even thinking about it. This book is for you.

Most of us have a dream job in mind. It might be as a travel rep, flying around the world, or it could be as a fireman or a stockbroker. Whatever it is, it's fair to say that you probably won't get it right away and you might have to do something else, at least for a while. But that's not to say that you should settle for it.In this insightful new book from Petros Eshetu, you can realize your dreams by following some simple advice. I Came, I Saw, I Jumped: How I Found My Dream Job and You Can Too, provides chapters on such things as:•Passion and purpose•Strategies to help you find your own passion and purpose•Hanging out with the right kind of people•Creating goals and visions•The challenges and beliefs that hold you back•Strategies to counter these limiting beliefsWritten from the experiences of the author, the book is a story of his own incredible journey from a job where he was unfulfilled, hated and felt miserable, to the present where he now enjoys a passionate and purposeful calling. You owe it to yourself to do a job you will love. This book could well be your first step in realizing your dreams.

About the Author Petros Eshetu is an Ethiopian-American author who grew up in Harare, Zimbabwe for most of his childhood. He attended the University of Wisconsin-Eau Claire and attained a Bachelor of Business-Finance and MBA. He currently works as a personal development coach, having previously worked in corporate America for 5 years and now lives in Minneapolis with his wife Lisa. Disillusioned with some aspects of his life, Petros decided to answer a question which had been at the centre of his thoughts for many years. What is my passion and purpose? Having spent many months researching, and learning from successful people, he transformed his life by applying the principles learnt, allowing himself to realize his dream of becoming a writer at the same time. In his spare time Petros enjoys an obsession with reading and visiting book stores. He also loves to indulge himself by trying out new cafes and restaurants with Lisa, travelling the world to visit his far-flung family and friends, while exploring new places. This is Petros's first book, but he hopes that it will be the first of many which will go some way to helping others. In the future he hopes to continue travelling and tick off all the places on his bucket list that he has still to visit. He is also determined to continue writing and to become an awesome coach, with the ability to help others to realise their own dreams. Petros's favorite quote goes some way to helping with that ndash; lsquo;In the end, it's not the years in your life that count. It's the life in your years .rsquo; Abraham Lincoln You can contact Petros at eshetu.petros@gmail.com. You can also stay connected with him through www.petroseshetu.com.
